PINCHBACK TRANSCENDING HIS DUTY.

Monday was a day of great excitement and trial in New Orleans. A collision between the two opposing State Governments was at one time imminent, but happily no disturbances occurred, and comparative quiet has been temporarily restored.

The trouble grew out of the order of Pinchback, issued on Saturday last, which threatened to disperse the Conservative or Fusion Legislature, in case it should have the temerity to assemble.

General Emory, the commander of the Federal troops at New Orleans, received instructions from President Grant, soon after Pinchback's proclamation appeared, that he must not allow any interference with the Conservative Legislature; that the United States troops must be used only to preserve the peace; that any body of citizens, styling themselves what they may, have the right to meet peaceably, for any purpose not unlawful; and, that if any attempt should be made to disperse any such assemblage, they shall be protected.

It is evident Pinchback was laboring under the impression that any high-handed measures he might adopt would meet with the sanction of Grant; and he imagined, if he could disperse the Conservative Legislature, while the question was pending in the Courts as to which of the two Legislatures was the lawful one, the case would be at end, and the Radicals would be at once established in power.

But the President could not go that far. His original order sustaining Pinchback, was only provisional or temporary, and was not intended as finally deciding in favor of the Radical State officers. The question as to which set of State officers was legally elected, is still before the Courts, and until that question is decided, the President will not sustain Pinchback in his efforts to disperse the Conservative Legislature; for that Legislature may, in the end, prove to be the rightful and only legal body.

If Pinchback attempts by force to prevent the Conservative Legislature from holding its meetings, the Federal military power, which he invoked to his aid, will, by the order of President Grant, be turned against him, and he will thus be hoisted by his own petard.

A NEW PAPER IN RALEIGH.

Hon. Daniel R. Goodloe, of Warren, has issued a prospectus of The Commonwealth, a weekly newspaper, which he proposes to publish in Raleigh—the first number to appear some time in March.

In his prospectus, Mr. Goodloe says that The Commonwealth "will be independent of parties, but will be neutral on no question of public concern. It will never fail to vindicate the rights of the individual, the rights of the States, and the perpetuity of the Union."

Mr. Goodloe has had much experience in journalism, and has been connected with the public press, at different intervals, for many years. He conducted a weekly paper in Washington City before the war with much ability, and since the war he established a paper in this city called the Register, which, during the short period of its existence, was a dignified and manly exponent of the political doctrines of the school of politics to which Mr. Goodloe belongs.

The Commonwealth will occupy in North Carolina about the same field of politics that the New York Tribune does in the nation. With Republican proclivities and tendencies, it will oppose Radicalism and "the centralizing policy of the Federal Administration, but will be no carping fault-finder, and will cordially welcome and applaud every wise and legitimate measure that emanates from Washington." It will pursue the same course towards the State Administration, and would be more pleased to approve than condemn its measures.

The price of The Commonwealth will be $3 per annum—to be enclosed to John Nichols & Co., Raleigh, N. C.

STOKES SENTENCED.

Edward Stokes, who was convicted in New York on the 4th inst., of the murder of James Fisk, Jr., has been sentenced by Judge Boardman, to be hanged on Friday, the 28th of February. This, as the telegram informed us, was the shortest time that could be legally allowed the murderer.

The Judge is represented as having delivered a feeling address on the occasion of sentencing the accused, in the course of which "he alluded to the prisoner's youth and social surroundings."

The conviction of Stokes will excite general surprise, as the failure of the jury to agree on the first trial created the impression on the public mind that a second trial would result in his acquittal.

It may be that the recent disgraceful murders that have been committed in New York, have operated on the minds of the jury with more effect than the strongest arguments of the counsel for the State, in showing the necessity of punishing criminals in order to stop the alarming increase of crime in that city.

In this community, the verdict of the jury in convicting Stokes seems to be universally approved, as no one seems to entertain the slightest doubt of his guilt. The only sympathy felt for him was due to the fact that the individual whose life he took, was a man of bad character and exerted an immoral influence on society.

THE USURY LAW IN VIRGINIA.

A bill has been introduced in the Virginia Legislature to reduce the legal rate of interest in that State to six per cent. Against this measure many of the leading papers of the State are entering their protest, and are urging the Legislature to permit the law to stand as at present—allowing twelve per cent on special contracts.

We trust that the North Carolina Legislature, when it assembles, will adopt the Virginia rate of twelve per cent, on special contracts—allowing the legal rate to remain as at present—six per cent, where no special agreement is made.

We copy elsewhere to-day an article from the Norfolk Journal, in regard to the proposed change in the Virginia usury law, from which it will be seen that paper takes strong ground against the proposed reduction. It quotes an extract from the News, showing the low rate of interest has driven thousands of dollars of North Carolina capital to Virginia for investment, and the Journal might have even gone farther, and stated that the city of Norfolk itself had received on deposit for investment a large portion of this capital, and that her bankers and merchants were reaping much of the profit and benefit derived from such investment.

If we judge from the tone of the press of this State, we think the people are anxious that the rate on special contracts for money be increased, while the legal rate remain as at present, where there is no agreement as to price.

MRS. WHARTON ON TRIAL AGAIN.

Mrs. Wharton is to go through another ordeal. Accompanied by her daughter Nellie, she has again put in an appearance at Annapolis—there to endure the pangs of a new trial for felony, on the charge of attempting to poison Yarness, in Baltimore.

We have no information through the papers whether or not the trial will be a protracted one, but there seemed to be an impression that this second arraignment was more a matter of form than an actual prosecution, and that the prisoner would be speedily discharged, after her triumphant acquittal of the murder of Gen. Ketchum.

If the trial is to be a lengthy one, we shall have the same old scenes re-enacted—the same witnesses, the same testimony, the same disagreement among the learned doctors about poisonous substances and chemical tests, the same arguments of counsel and pathetic appeals, and the same verdict of not guilty.

Surely, if Mrs. Wharton is an innocent woman, she has been greatly wronged and is one of the most unfortunate beings that ever lived. If she is guilty, she deserves no pity and her sufferings are merited.

THE LEGAL RATE OF INTEREST IN THE STATE.

The decision of this question by the Legislature will have an immediate material effect one way or the other, either for good or evil in Virginia. Money lenders and money borrowers are awaiting it with equal anxiety. Capitalists are concerned about it, workmen, merchants, mechanics, farmers, in fact all who are engaged in any business in any way in the State, are regarding the Legislature, in reference to its action in this matter, with impatient anxiety.

The financial condition of this Commonwealth, and of the people individually, is such that they cannot afford to encounter the inevitable effects that would ensue from a return to six per cent as the maximum rate of interest allowed by the law. We want money to be flowing into the State, instead of out of it. The way to attract money is to offer a fair per centage for it, certainly not to make it unlawful to pay as much for the use of it as the lender and borrower may both be able to agree upon and may both be able to afford.

The Raleigh Daily News of Thursday, discussing the question of usury in its application to North Carolina, says: "Hundreds of thousands of dollars of North Carolina capital flow annually to Virginia for investment on account of the low rate of interest in this State. This is lost to us—or if it comes back, it is because our people are compelled to go to Virginia for it, and borrow it there at Virginia rates."

There is an argument in this brief paragraph which our Legislature would do well to consider.

ROGER B. TANEY.—The Springfield (Mass.) Republican says: "Roger B. Taney was one of the purest men that ever sat in the seat of John Marshall; upright, inflexible, fearless, as transcendent a devotee to duty as Mr. Sumner himself. Now that he is dead, we ought to be able to see the man himself behind his warped conscience, and hereditary prejudices, and perverse politics. If it is a purely political reason that still keeps his bust out of the Supreme Court-room, Republican statesmen should ask themselves whether this petty, posthumous vengeance is quite worthy of them or of the country."

A party of young men recently travelled 150 miles on skates on the Mississippi river.

Editors News:

Dear News:—The holidays being over, the laboring classes have all returned to their respective works, and business, which is perfectly natural they should, but some of our young men have returned heartless, and others not so unfortunates as to lose their hearts. These have been out deer-hunting, and of course, they must abide by the consequences. We pity them, however.

Ketchy, a notorious horse thief, who broke jail in this place about a year ago, having been committed for horse stealing, was recaptured in Salisbury last week and lodged in jail there. Sheriff Stafford receiving intelligence to that effect, repaired thither on Wednesday, and taking charge of the man, securely handcuffed, where he lodged the bird in jail.

The Methodist Female College, Court House and Masonic Hall, are fast approaching completion. The college is one of the largest buildings in the State; the interior of the Court House is to be of an improved plan, affording the Court a better hearing, and placing the spectators near the trial stage; and the Masonic Hall will have all the conveniences necessary for the Lodge. Improvements are going on all around. Two new buildings near the depot are being built, a dwelling house and a business house. Visit any portion of the city you please, your eye will light on improvements.

Messrs. Odell & Ragan opened their new brick store on the first inst., and are doing a good business, and will by their persistent efforts, rank first among our mercantile firm five convicts in jail here—one white, and four blacks.

This city is on the onward march in the way of a tobacco market. At present there are three warehouses, which are doing a splendid business for the season, it being rather early for tobacco to come in very rapidly. In one house, conducted by Mr. Ellison, there were 1600 pounds sold last Tuesday, which is a small day's sale.

There was another ball at the Bon-ho House last week, and two or three at private residences. The old fashion molasses candy pulling as yet hasn't played out in this burg. It's right amusing to see two "little 'uns" stringing the cooked molasses into candy and eating at the same time. Before they have it well stretched it is all gone.

Mr. R. H. Albright, late of the Reidsville Recorder, is still at his residence here.

The pastor of the Methodist church and lady celebrated their marriage day Thursday last at the parsonage.

The epizootic is about played out; but few horses now have it. Farmers, who have heretofore hitched horses outside the corporation, and walked in the city, now ride up to their old hitching grounds. This epidemic must have something peculiar in it if we are to judge from the run-aways we've had since it made its appearance among our stock. During the holidays a sewing machine agent's horse dashed through the streets at a furious rate, causing dismay, but doing little damage.

Friday last a horse ran away, tearing the shafts from the owner's buggy; in the morning of the same day the same sewing machine agent's horse ran away with another citizen, doing no harm; and in the afternoon of that day, while a young man was returning from a ride in the country, his horse threw him, kicked him and run over him, leaving the unfortunate fellow lying in the mud. He, however, managed to crawl to the city, a wiser if not a better man, with a few bruises, though.

Col. E. P. Jones, the great horse tamer, who can make a trotting horse pace, or a pacing horse trot and make a kicking mule and horse do so no more, is making up a class to whom he proposes giving instructions in the art.

A colored man was fortunate enough to shoot a wild turkey for the holidays, and it took him a dinner. Probably somebody's tame turkey.

Quails, more commonly called partridges, are selling on the streets at ten cents apiece.

That big snow is all gone; the heavy rains for several days in succession liquefied the snow very rapidly. There was no end to mud a day or two afterwards, which was about as deep as the snow, but a little worse. Pedestrians saw signs of the weather in the mud, and warm through the day and cold at night. Saturday was unusually pleasant and agreeable. The fair sex, like squirrels after a bad spell, show off amazingly. A close observer could have seen the young men eyeing them as though they were something strange on the streets. We must confess they are very attractive creatures. If a fellow don't keep a sharp look out he will lose what neither silver nor gold can purchase, unless he be a fortune seeker.

Very little sickness in the place, but the "bad cold" is a raging epidemic.

Owing to the heavy rains and the liquefaction of the snow at the same time two Buffalo streams were swelled to overflowing, and widely flooded the low grounds.

The digging of an artesian well in the public square is rumored on the streets. It is badly needed.

A pretty specimen of humanity, in the shape of a drunkard, in coming out of a gin mill yesterday, lost his balance and fell headlong on the side walk, bruising his face almost beyond recognition.

One case of measles has made an appearance in our city.

RUPERT.

As an evidence of thrift on the part of the colored race in Tennessee, it is noted that since the price of a marriage license has been fixed at $10 they generally forego that expensive luxury.

The merchants of San Francisco are filling a subscription fund of $50,000 to establish a Sailors' Home, for the protection of poor Jack from his natural enemies, the boarding house keepers.

In the sulphur mines in Lower California it is reported that about 1,000,000 tons of the mineral are already uncovered.

Wild boar is no longer to be preserved by German game laws, and may therefore be potted by the population generally.

At Table Mount, Ia., a few days ago, a sexton was found frozen to death in a grave which he had just finished digging.

In the same township Mr. J. H. Stewart raised 30 heavy bales of cotton, 250 bushels of corn and 200 bushels of wheat. Mr. Stewart used two mules. He put 200 pounds of acid phosphate upon each acre of his cotton land. He speaks very favorably of the Pacific, which he has also used."

The Southern Home tells of the following horrible accident: "A young man of seventeen, named Hartsell, was going to Monroe, the day before Christmas, and finding Stewart's Fork flushed with water, he took out one of his horses to try the ford and made two attempts to cross. The horse became frightened, ran off and threw the young man, whose foot caught in the gears and he was dragged a quarter of a mile. The horse in running knocked down several panels of fence with the unfortunate young man, crushing him into a shapeless mass."

A Sad End.

John Haddy, a gentleman and law student, who had received the best education that England affords, died of starvation in London the other day. Unable to make a living, and too proud to beg, he was carried to the workhouse, where he died of inanition. He was a man of vast erudition, fine abilities and temperate habits. What a commentary upon English charity and philanthropy.

The income of the Inns Court in London is not less than $500,000 a year, positively lying idle, and yet the Benchers of the Inner Temple compel law students to pay for admission to their library. Poor Mr. Haddy was prevented from earning a few shillings at law reporting on account of this arbitrary enactment. He had no money where-with to pay "library fees," and he was shut out from following his profession by reason of his inability to pay law books. What a fearful place that London is, with all its awful poverty, and how tempted one becomes when such sad scenes as these are recorded, to cry aloud with all the anguish of poor Tom Hood:

"O God! that bread should be so dear, And flesh and blood so cheap!"

Lawrence, Kan., is suffering from an epidemic of small-pox.

A coal passer on the steamer Isaac Bell, on Saturday, at Norfolk, while standing on the piddle had his head badly injured by being caught between the guard beams and wheel.

Miss Virginia, daughter of Rev. Dr. Cunningham, of Abingdon, made a fortunate escape from death on Christmas night. Her clothes caught fire, and in extinguishing the flames her father's hands were badly burned. The young lady escaped with injury.

This is strictly a

HOME LIFE COMPANY.

Its Officers and Directors are citizens of the State, of high character for business capacity, enterprise and probity. It offers every that Northern Companies do, with the great additional consideration that the capital is kept within the State, and, therefore, helps to build up and foster Home Institutions. An important factor to be considered is, that the Wilmington Life has thus far obtained a very much larger increase for the money invested at home, than any of the New York Companies receive for their investments, according to their sworn statements before the Commissioner of that State.

These unquestionable facts should command this Company, above all others, to our people. Let it be born in mind that millions of dollars received for Life premiums have been sent North since the war, which at once drains the South and enriches the northern capitalists of the North. If there was no other consideration, safety, fairness and cheapness being equal, why North Carolinians should secure at home, this were more than sufficient.

has excellent special features. It places no restriction on Residence or Travel; it makes no extra charge for Female risks; and its Policies are incontestable after Five Years.

Its business is managed economically. Its risks are taken with equal caution. Its investments are made judiciously. Its motto is:

"ECONOMY, PROMPTNESS, FAIRNESS."

That was a good joke of Mr. South's—very good indeed—but it was not original. A wiser and more distinguished Englishman than the unsuspecting husband of Miss Adelaide Neilson was similarly put upon at the Galt House in this city thirty-five or forty years ago. A certain Captain Marryatt, famed in romantic novel lore, was travelling in America. He had heard of the dark and bloody ground, and he came here to see it. Those were the days of the Walds and Throckmorton, and livelier times of a livelier set were known nowhere between Lizard Point and Simms' Hole. The author of Peter Simple was cordially received and hospitably treated. He was taken to the race-course every day. He was invited into the mysteries of "Old Crow." Of course he could not be allowed to quit Kentucky soil without a taste of draw poker and a beautiful little scene was organized for his special benefit. What followed is told by Captain Marryatt himself in the book which he published after his return to England: "The game proceeded with good nature for half an hour. Then there arose a dispute between a gentleman they called 'Judge' and another gentleman who went by the title of 'Governor.' I think the Governor accused the Judge of concealing a card in his sleeve. At all events, the debate grew very hot, when the Judge suddenly drew his revolver; immediately the Governor drew his bowie knife; the table was tipped over in a trice, extinguishing the lights, when at least twenty shots were fired. Three gentlemen were wounded—one fatally." The author does not add that Captain Marryatt was found under the bed. Nor does he tell his readers that the whole affair was a farce, for how could he know that, having fled by the 6 o'clock coach next morning for Nashville? The same hoax was "set up" for Dickens, but Boz was too full of his greatness at that time to accept the familiar attentions of the natives.—Courier-Journal.

At the most fashionable dancing parties in New York, this winter, the carpets will be taken up and the floors waxed. Doctors have declared that the lint which rises from linen dancing cloths is very injurious, and society has made up its mind not to breathe napkins and table-cloths in a generous form any longer.

At a recent wedding in Killings, Ct. the bride wore the beautiful pink silk stocking which her mother wore at her own wedding 35 years ago; the bridegroom wearing the fine white ones worn by his father upon his wedding day, 51 years before.

Rhoda Broughton, the coming novelist, makes all her stories end just as you don't want them to. The virtuous are left suffering, while the wretches are as happy as a clothes-horse during epizoot.

It is proposed to start an illustrated daily paper in New York city, and the sheriff is already instructing a deputy what to do with the wood cuts when the thing collapses.
